

On the 6th of October 2009, Projectize, a founding partner of the newly formed European School of Project Management (ESPM), has participated in its launch during a national event on resource development. The school is a non-profit consortium that aims to promote an articulated approach to projects' execution and control in both the private and the public sectors.

For further information, please visit www.espm.eu

On the 6th of October 2009, Projectize, a founding partner of the newly formed European School of Project Management (ESPM), has participated in its launch during a national event on resource development.

The school is a non-profit consortium that aims to promote an articulated approach to projects' execution and control in both the private and the public sectors.

For further information, please visit <http://www.espm.eu>